Beauty in Men Seems to Be at a Discount Among Seekers of Desirable Husbands: They're Conceited!

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

"In no other city in the world (at least before the war broke out) do young women perform such a great share of work as in New York. The coming generation of young New Yorkers will bow in gratitude to the New York girl teacher. Some of the biggest factories and business enterprises would go out of business were it not for the New York girl. An examination of the New York savings banks would prove that the New York "Dear Madam: With regard to your article. What sort of wife do you article. What sort of wife do you want? I wish to say: I am a foreign-ties are earns fame. She is the great inspiration; sponsible for the very existence of this great city."

That's the glowing tribute to the New York girl to by "S. B.," who wishes to answer Arthur M. Loeb's itlicism of that young person. Mr. Loeb, as you know, it is spaper to help him find a wife, and in stating her loss remarked that he did not recommended. girls are better contributors than the New York men. The work of the New York girl for churches and charitable organizations is inestimable. As writer, poet and artist she earns fame. She is the great inspiration; responsible for the very existence of this great city."

me by "S. B.," who wishes to answer Arthur M. Loeb's criticism of that young person. Mr. Loeb, as you know, recently asked a newspaper to help him find a wife, and in stating her recently asked a newspaper to help him find a wife, and in stating her necessary characteristics remarked that he did not care for the New York type. "Most women of this type," he declared, "are overdressed and have me on our way to happiness.

"B. P. A." not the qualifications that I believe are necessary for a good lifelong comignored altogether. Baiting the feminine New Yorker for her fine clothes, her artificiality, her love of pleasure. is the favorite occupation of every backwoods preacher and of cershould know better. But for the eplendid amount of work which is performed by New York women in personal and public capacities they receive little credit. Nevertheless, they are the highly efficient props of our greatest commercial and professional enterprises, and they give time, money and energy unmeasured to philanthropy and social service. Why—as "S. B." intimates—isn't all this excellent schooling for the

SIRABLE TYPE. Here is the rest of his letter, and

"Dear Madam: The New York girl has made a greater impression upon me than any other type. I have never been in South America, but have see been in South America, but have seen much or Europe. I do not judge a young woman by her dresses and jeweiry, but would state here that the girls I have thought the most of in New York have been plain in their clothes. The average girl in this city is not overdressed, but understands better than her sisters on this side or the other side of the ocean how to dress in a becoming

"I fail to understand what Mr. Loe meant by an 'overeducated' woman. A person can be well educated, but not overeducated. The present day young woman does not exhibit a veneer of education, but can prove by deeds her ability and efficiency. Educated young women are, in most cases, had workers. As we know, intelligence alone cannot accurate. cases, hat workers. As we know, in-telligence alone cannot acquire knowledge; but work, determination and perseverance are necessary to pass examinations and to get and hold positions. The educated woman marries for love oftener than other girls do.

"Men will find the educated girl an economical manager, a good cook, a sagacious adviser and business partner, a sweet wife and devoted mother to their children. Some men seem to be afraid of the well educated woman and I have heard among them such remarks as "Beware of the educated girls," but I know that I would not marry any of those men myself if I were a girl.
"Now, to my ideal life partner.

Now, to my ideal life partner. I never had a certain type of woman as my ideal until I met her; then I knew my ideal. That she is well educated and a New York girl may have been a strong reason for my failing in love with her.

"She did not look for riches; nother did I. Now, since I love her and intend to marry her. I do not ask myself, as Mr. Loob does, 'What do I want or what do I set?' but 'What must I do to make her happy?' I personally regard having won the love of an educated New York giri as the greatest achievement of my life.

WESTERN GIRL WANTS TRUE GENTLEMAN AS HUSBAND. "Dear Madam: Perhaps you will be interested in hearing from a Westera girl, who has lived several years abroad and long enough in New York to feel at home here.

"First of all, then, Mr. Man must be a true gentleman at heart; kind, considerate, and home-loving. Rich or handsome he need not be. In fact, I much prefer he should have only moderate 'helpings' of each. Mr. Handsome Man is almost always conceited and selfish, and Mr. Rich Man is too often lazy and lacking in the necessary morals. "That brings me to the second requirement, a high moral standard. Next on the list would be, I think, a serious interest in something well worth while in life, and last but not least, a keen sense of humor. I might add a love of all the fine arts to my list to make him a more congenial companion, and with that I think I can call my ostalogue of 'his' virtues complete. Not an ideal man at all, you see, but just a very possible—if perhaps a bit unusually nice—person. I shall be interested to read what some of the other tastes in husbands are. L. A."

"First and most of all he must have a good character and have a good, sympathetic disposition. He must not be handsome, but neat and nice looking. He must have a little education and speak fairly good English. He must not be a lawyer or doctor or business man, but a good, refined workingman.
"He must be able to make a reasonable salary—enough to support a wife comfortably without luxuries. What I want is a quiet, stay-at-home man.
